Nunn and William Travillt in 2000, performed two wonderfully mesmerizing works, “Serpent” and “Fallen,” both of which premiered in March.

Serpent, which had the dancers slithering sinuously back and forth across the stage, featured an original symphonic score by acclaimed composer Max Richter, while Fallen had the cast in war mode, featuring choreography by Russell Maliphant.

Michael Hull's innovative lighting was also wonderfully effective...

A Half-century Later

PathPoint, which serves 2,000 individuals with difficulties such as autism, Down's syndrome, cerebral palsy, and homelessness, celebrated its 50th anniversary at the La Cumbre Country Club with a reception for 150 guests, raising around $50,000 for the general fund.

The nonprofit, formerly known as Work Training Programs Inc., honored mayor Helene Schneider and George McDonald, who has worked with the charity for nearly three decades, and his family, represented by his sister, Jo Ann Weninger.

There are 400 employees working with 400 county partners.

Among the many supporters present were James and Linda Brinkman, Forrest and Rachel Huff, Hannah-Beth Jackson, Christopher and Sharon Jones, Seth and Kim Miller, Marc and Frances Pasquini, Greg and Gina Van Ness, and Janet Wolf.

Bailey, and the Hutton Parker Foundation were honored.

Ubiquitous emcee Andrew Firestone sold out the chance for two girls to be weather reporters for the day at KEYT-TV, the local ABC affiliate, with the winners appearing on the evening news in a pre-taped segment.

A truly novel experience!

Judy Vredenburg, president and CEO of Girls Inc. in New York, flew in for the bash, chaired by Stephanie Ball and featuring speaker Lois Phillips, author of Women Seen and Heard.

A record 400 guests attended, raising around $75,000 for the popular organization, whose catchphrase is “Strong, Smart and Bold.”

Turning out for the cause were Victoria Hines, Beverly Jackson, Penny Jenkins, Perri Harcourt, Thomas Caled, Rich Block, Bob and Patty Bryant, Andrea Rifkin, Anne Luther Janet Garufis, Betty and Deanna Hatch, Diana MacFarlane, Carole Ridding, Lois and William Rosen, Anne Luther, mayor Helene Schneider and Robyn Parker...

One for the Books

Petite Day Mitchell, daughter of the late Monte Carlo-based actor Robert Mitchell, has just released the second edition of her successful equine tense Hollywood Hoofbeats, which explores the fascinating history of horses in movies and TV with co-writer Audrey Pavia.

"It’s arguably the most complete